Rainfall collecting on your street?

Rainwater can accumulate on the street after recent rainfall when located near a trap low

If water has not completely drained from streets within 24 hours once the rain stops, please contact us.

A trap low is a device that controls water drainage from Town streets. When it rains, water may accumulate on the road near your house, up to and sometimes including your driveway and a portion of your lawn. This is normal for areas with a trap low.

In streets with trap lows instead of traditional storm drains, it may appear that the street is flooding. It is not. Trap lows are designed to hold the water on the street and away from property foundations.
