

Cochrane Dollar Security Features

1 Synthetic Polymer
The notes are printed on a white synthetic polymer material.
Check for: a smooth surface feel and thickness similar to a Canadian bill.

2 Serial Number and Invisible UV Ink
All notes are numbered below the Proudly Cochrane logo on the face side using both black ink and invisible UV ink.
Check for: seven-digit serial number; fluorescent yellow-green numbers under UV light.

3 Embossing
The Proudly Cochrane stamp on the face side has the star and two rings in the logo embossed (pressed) into the bills.
Check for: raised or recessed edges of the star and two rings in Proudly Cochrane.

4 Foil
Transparent holographic foil is imprinted on the back of each note, over the denomination strip.
Check for: reflective surface on the column of numbers.

5 Varnish Coating
Each note has varnish coating over the primary subject on each side.
Check for: extra sheen on the primary subject of the note.

6 Metallic Ink
There is a guilloche pattern printed in metallic ink behind the primary subject on both sides of the note. On the $150 bill, it is used on the Canada 150 maple leaf logo.
Check for: metallic pattern made of very thin lines.

7 Microtype
The words Cochrane Monetary Foundation (run together and repeated) appear in a very small font on the front of the note in two locations: running vertically along both sides of the coloured rectangle containing the denomination of the note.
Check for: "COCHRANEMONETARYFOUNDATION" under magnification.

About the designs

The Town of Cochrane, in partnership with the Cochrane Monetary Foundation, selected imagery that captures elements of Cochrane's character, celebrating its cultural and western heritage, its creative spirit, diversity and historic landmarks.

The bill design, combined with a number of security features, creates a set of Cochrane Dollars the Town can be proud of.

For 2017, the Cochrane Monetary Foundation also created a limited edition C$ 150 note to celebrate Canada's 150 birthday.
